

Play Therapy Dimensions Model

About the workshop

The Play Therapy Dimensions Model (PTDM) has been developed by Lorri Yasenik and Ken Gardner and it developed from Prescriptive Play Therapy approach as suggested by Charles Schaefer. The PTDM subsume the variety of play therapy approaches and techniques in order to address a spectrum of presenting problems and tailor-made the suitable treatment plan for the clients. The model encourages therapists to have continual assessment for the clients as the treatment process going on and it is helpful for therapists to decide the suitable intervention during the therapeutic process.

What you can learn from the workshop:

- Understanding the different approaches of play therapy
- Selecting the suitable approach according to the clients' need.
- Application of the PTDM in the clinical situation
- Assessing the changes in child's play/ behavior
- Increasing the ability of assessment, conceptualization and treatment planning
